ABOUT THE AUTHOR

Jen Wilkin is an author and Bible teacher from Dallas, Texas. She has organized and led studies for women in home, church, and parachurch contexts. Her passion is to see others become articulate and committed followers of Christ, with a clear understanding of why they believe what they believe, grounded in the Word of God. Jen is the author of Ten Words to Live By: Delighting in and Doing What God Commands, Women of the Word, None Like Him, In His Image, and Bible studies exploring the Sermon on the Mount and the books of Genesis, Exodus, Hebrews, 1 Peter, and 1,2,3 John. You can find her at jenwilkin.net.

FOREWORD: HOW SHOULD WE APPROACH GOD'S WORD?

Our Purpose

The Bible study you are about to begin will teach you a book of the Bible in a way that will stay with you for years to come. It will challenge you to move beyond loving God with just your heart to loving Him with your mind. It will focus on answering the question, “What does the Bible say about God?” It will aid you in the worthy task of God-discovery.

You see, the Bible is not a book about self-discovery; it is a book about God-discovery. The Bible is God's declared intent to make Himself known to us. In learning about the character of God in Scripture, we will experience self-discovery, but it must not be the first object of our study. The first object must be God Himself.

This focus changes the way we study. We look first for what a passage can teach us about the character of God, allowing self-discovery to be the by-product of God-discovery. This is a much better approach because there can be no true knowledge of self apart from knowledge of God. So when I read the account of Jonah, I see first that God is just and faithful to His Word—He is faithful to proclaim His message to Nineveh no matter what. I see second that I, by contrast (and much like Jonah), am unjust to my fellow man and unfaithful to God's Word. Thus, knowledge of God leads to true knowledge of self, which leads to repentance and transformation. So are confirmed Paul's words in Romans 12:2 that we are transformed by the renewing of our minds.

Most of us are good at loving God with our hearts. We are good at employing our emotions in our pursuit of God. But the God who commands us to love with the totality of our hearts, souls, and strength also commands us to love Him with all of our minds. Because He only commands what He also enables His children to do, it must be possible for us to love Him well with our minds or He would not command it. I know you will bring your emotions to your study of God's Word, and that is good and right. But it is your mind I am jealous for. God intends for you to be a good student, renewing your mind and thus transforming your heart.

Our Process

Being a good student entails following good study habits. When we sit down to read, most of us like to read through a particular passage and then find a way to apply it to our everyday lives. We may read through an entire book of the Bible over a period of time, or we may jump around from place to place. I want to suggest a different approach, one that may not always yield immediate application, comfort, or peace, but one that builds over time a cumulative understanding of the message of Scripture.

Reading in Context and Repetitively

Imagine yourself receiving a letter in the mail. The envelope is handwritten, but you don't glance at the return address. Instead you tear open the envelope, flip to the second page, read two paragraphs near the bottom, and set the letter aside. Knowing that if someone bothered to send it to you, you should act on its contents in some way, you spend a few minutes trying to figure out how to respond to what the section you just read had to say. What are the odds you will be successful?

No one would read a letter this way. But this is precisely the way many of us read our Bibles. We skip past reading the “envelope”—Who wrote this? To whom was it written? When was it written? Where was it written?—and then try to determine the purpose of its contents from a portion of the whole. What if we took time to read the envelope? What if, after determining the context for its writing, we started at the beginning and read to the end? Wouldn't that make infinitely more sense?

In our study, we will take this approach to Scripture. We will begin by placing the book in its historical and cultural context. We will “read the envelope.” Then we will read through the entire text so that we can better determine what it wants to say to us. We will read repetitively so that we might move through three critical stages of understanding: comprehension, interpretation, and application.

STAGE 1: COMPREHENSION

Remember the reading comprehension section on the SAT? Remember those long reading passages followed by questions to test your knowledge of what you had just read? The objective was to force you to read for detail. We are going to apply the same method to our study of God's Word. When we read for comprehension, we ask ourselves, What does it say? This is hard work. A person who comprehends the account of the six days of creation can tell you specifically what happened on each day. This is the first step toward being able to interpret and apply the story of creation to our lives.

STAGE 2: INTERPRETATION

While comprehension asks, What does it say?, interpretation asks, What does it mean? Once we have read a passage enough times to know what it says, we are ready to look into its meaning. A person who interprets the creation story can tell you why God created in a particular order or way. She is able to imply things from the text beyond what it says.

STAGE 3: APPLICATION

After doing the work to understand what the text says and what the text means, we are finally ready to ask, How should it change me? Here is where we draw on our God-centered perspective to ask three supporting questions:

- What does this passage teach me about God?
- How does this aspect of God's character change my view of self?
- What should I do in response?

A person who applies the creation story can tell us that because God creates in an orderly fashion, we, too, should live well-ordered lives. Knowledge of God gleaned through comprehension of the text and interpretation of its meaning can now be applied to my life in a way that challenges me to be different.

SOME GUIDELINES

It is vital to the learning process that you allow yourself to move through the three stages of understanding on your own, without the aid of commentaries or study notes. The first several times you read a passage, you will probably be confused. In our study together, not all the homework questions will have answers that are immediately clear to you. This is actually a good thing. If you are unsure of an answer, give it your best shot. Allow yourself to feel lost, to dwell in the "I don't know." It will make the moment of discovery stick. We'll also expand our understanding in the small-group discussion and teaching time.

Nobody likes to feel lost or confused, but it is an important step in the acquisition and retention of understanding. Because of this, I have a few guidelines to lay out for you as you go through this study.

1. Avoid all commentaries until comprehension and interpretation have been earnestly attempted on your own. In other words, wait to read commentaries until after you have done the homework, attended small-group time, and listened to the teaching. And then, consult commentaries you can trust. Ask a pastor or Bible teacher at your church for suggested authors. A list of the commentaries, books, and resources used in creating this study can be found on page 219.
2. For the purposes of this study, get a Bible without study notes. Come on, it's just too easy to look at them. You know I'm right.
3. Though commentaries are initially off-limits, here are some tools you should use:
 - Cross-references. These are the Scripture references in the margin or at the bottom of the page in your Bible. They point you to other passages that deal with the same topic or theme. You'll find a list on pages 216–218 to get you started.

- An English dictionary to look up unfamiliar words. A good online dictionary is merriam-webster.com.
- Other translations of the Bible. We will use the Christian Standard Bible (CSB) as a starting point, but you can easily consult other versions online. I recommend the English Standard Version (ESV), New International Version (NIV), New Living Translation (NLT), and New King James Version (NKJV). Reading more than one translation can expand your understanding of the meaning of a passage. Note: Paraphrases, such as The Message, can be useful but should be regarded as commentary rather than a translation. They are best consulted after careful study of an actual translation.
- A printed copy of the text, double-spaced, so you can mark repeated words, phrases, or ideas. A complete copy of Revelation is provided for you to mark at the back of this workbook.

STORING UP TREASURE

Approaching God's Word with a God-centered perspective, with context, and with care takes effort and commitment. It is study for the long-term. Some days your study may not move you emotionally or speak to an immediate need. You may not be able to apply a passage at all. But what if ten years from now, in a dark night of the soul, that passage suddenly opens up to you because of the work you have done today? Wouldn't your long-term investment be worth it?

In Matthew 13 we see Jesus begin to teach in parables. He tells seven deceptively simple stories that left His disciples struggling for understanding—dwelling in the “I don't know,” if you will. After the last parable, He turns to them and asks, “Have you understood all these things?” (v. 51a). Despite their apparent confusion, they answer out of their earnest desire with, “Yes” (v. 51b). Jesus tells them that their newfound understanding makes them “like the owner of a house who brings out of his storeroom new treasures as well as old” (v. 52, NIV).

A storeroom, as Jesus indicated, is a place for keeping valuables over a long period of time for use when needed. Faithful study of God's Word is a means for filling our spiritual storerooms with truth, so that in our hour of need we can bring forth both the old and the new as a source of rich provision. I pray that this study would be for you a source of much treasure and that you would labor well to obtain it.

Grace and peace,

ACKNOWLEDGMENTS

Of all the studies I have written and taught, this one has been the most challenging. I had no desire to tackle it on my own, and because the Lord is kind to me, He surrounded me with excellent helpers. These faithful friends and partners have buffered me from the storm of blind spots, self-doubt, and loneliness that can accompany a project of this complexity. They loaned me their time. They loaned me courage. And their enthusiasm, faithful prayer, and material help has made the study you hold more useful and beautiful than it ever could have been had the whole thing been left to me.

To my agent, Erik Wolgemuth: Remember that time you helped me get my first study published? I'll never stop being grateful that you believed in this work.

To Team Glamarrillo, my friends Lindsey Brittain and Lindey Duckworth: You help me put my best self forward with patience and humor. You're the best therapy in a stressful week of taping. I'm sorry about all the dog fur and boring neutrals. Please never write a memoir of our time together.

To my team at Lifeway: Becky Loyd and Tina Boesch, you make crooked paths straight. You make it easy for me to lay down my "yes." Mike Wakefield and Lisa Turner, your belief in this project bolstered my own. Jessica Yentzer, Heather Ross, Chelsea Waack, Tessa Morrell, Sarah Kilgore, Lauren Ervin, Sarah Hobbs, and Tim Cox, your skilled work turns the utilitarian into the transcendent. Laura Magness, your fingerprints are on every page of this study. You have my trust and my admiration.

And finally, to my beloved "guinea pigs" who sat for hours in my dining room to allow me to develop my thoughts in real time: thank you, Molly Abrigg, Lindsey Brittain, Becca Burt, Erin Campbell, Aina Carruth, Marissa Castilleja, Susan Davis, Ashley Dittimore, Hannah Elmore, Lauren Galgano, Megan Gray, Tyler Gray, Kelli Galyean, Kelsey Hency, Anne Lincoln Holibaugh, Michelle Holmgren, Emily Spalding, Sally Sturm, Elizabeth Woodson, and my favorite of all, Jeff Wilkin. The coffee was bad and the seating was uncomfortable. You came anyway. Your honest feedback is almost as precious to me as your friendships. I will always remember your faces in the late afternoon light of that room. One fine day, we will sing the doxology together in the new Jerusalem.

HOW TO USE THIS STUDY

This workbook is designed to be used in a specific way. The homework in the workbook will start you in the process of comprehension, interpretation, and application. However, it was designed to dovetail with small-group discussion time and the video teaching sessions. The workbook is not intended to be used apart from the video teaching. The video teaching sessions are intended to resolve most, if not all, of your unanswered questions from the homework and discussion time. You'll find detailed information for how to access the video teaching sessions that accompany this study in the back of your workbook. With this in mind, consider using the materials as follows.

First, watch the brief video "Introduction: Before You Begin" available in your Lifeway On Demand app or at lifeway.com/revelation. In the video Jen shares about her methodology for Bible study and provides helpful insight for what to expect from Revelation. If you have never done one of Jen's studies, start here.

If you are going through the study in a group, first do your homework, and then discuss the questions your group decides to cover. Then watch the video teaching. Some groups watch the teaching before they meet, which can also work if that format fits best for everyone. Just be aware that this approach changes the content of the discussion. Group leaders, you'll find a video just for you, promotional materials, and more tools to help you lead at lifeway.com/revelation.

If you are going through the study on your own, first work through the homework, and then watch the corresponding video teaching for that week.

A note about the homework. Each week of homework is divided into five sections plus a wrap-up. When you see this icon, it indicates the beginning of a new section of the study. Each homework section includes a series of comprehension and interpretation questions and one set of application questions. For Week One, there is no homework. The study begins with a video introduction. You will find a Viewer Guide on pages 16–17 that you can use as you watch the introductory material.

You'll find detailed information for how to ACCESS THE VIDEO TEACHING SESSIONS that accompany this study in the back of your workbook.

A NOTE TO GROUP LEADERS

Thank you for saying yes to leading a women's Bible study group. The leadership task ahead of you may feel daunting, but it doesn't have to be. Revelation may present unique challenges for discussion groups, but not insurmountable ones!

Visit lifeway.com/revelation for a word of encouragement and help from Jen as you prepare to lead other women through their study of Revelation.

At the end of each week's homework you will find a group discussion guide intended to help facilitate discussion in small groups. This guide includes questions to help group members compare what they have learned from their homework. These questions are either pulled directly from the homework, or they summarize a concept or theme that the homework covered. Each section covers content from a particular day of the homework, first asking group members to reflect on their observations and then asking them to apply. The observation questions typically ask group members to report a finding or flesh out an interpretation. The application questions challenge them to move beyond intellectual understanding and to identify ways to live differently in light of what they have learned.

As a small group leader, you will want to review these questions before you meet with your group, thinking through your own answers, marking where they occur in the homework, and noting if there are any additional questions you might want to reference to help the flow of the discussion. These questions are suggestions only, intended to help you cover as much ground as you can in a forty-five minute discussion time. They should not be seen as requirements or limitations but as guidelines to help you prepare your group for the teaching time by allowing them to process collectively what they have learned during their homework.

As a facilitator of discussion rather than a teacher, you are allowed and encouraged to be a colearner with your group members. This means you yourself may not always feel confident of your answer to a given question, and that is perfectly OK. Because we are studying for the long-term, we are allowed to leave some questions partially answered or unresolved, trusting for clarity at a later time. In most cases, the video teaching time should address any lingering questions that are not resolved in the homework or the small group discussion time.

WEEK ONE

UNVEILING

REVELATION 1:1-3

Blessed is the one who reads aloud the words of this prophecy, and blessed are those who hear the words of this prophecy and keep what is written in it, because the time is near.

REVELATION 1:3

VIEWER GUIDE NOTES

Watch the teaching video for Week One. Use the space provided to take notes.

Who wrote Revelation?

To whom was it written?

When was it written?

To access the video teaching sessions, use the instructions in the back of your workbook.

In what style was it written?

What are the central themes of the book?

Before you begin your Week Two homework, be sure to read the Foreword (pp. 6–10) and watch the “Introduction: Before You Begin” video (view in your Lifeway OnDemand app or online at lifeway.com/revelation) for an explanation of the Bible study method used in this study.

SEVEN CHURCHES

In our introduction we noted John's pronouncement of blessing on the one who reads aloud the words of Revelation, the one who hears them, and the one who keeps them. Each week of our study, we will practice these three actions.

At the end of a week of homework, we will reflect on what we have heard and how we can keep it. At the beginning of the week, your first assignment will be to read aloud the portion of the text you are examining. Use the printed copy in the back of this workbook to help (pp. 173–208). Try to refrain from making any notes or stopping to think through an idea. You will have time for that as you work through the homework assignment. Imagine yourself reading to a room full of listeners. (Or even better, read the passage aloud to someone!) Choose your pacing and emphasis so that a listener could absorb what you are reading.

This week we will behold the risen Christ in all His glory, and we will hear the seven letters given to seven young churches in Asia Minor. As in our day, these churches faced the schemes of the devil with varying degrees of success. We have much to learn from what the Spirit says to them—and to us. Remember: we have described the book of Revelation as cinematic. With this in mind, we will move at a quick pace through the letters, examining them at a high level and looking for their message to those who conquer through their faithful witness.

REVELATION 1:4–3:22

READ REVELATION 1:1–3:22 ALOUD from start to finish.

1. Summarize each of the main sections in two to three sentences. What does John see? What does he hear?

1:1-3

1:4-8

1:9-20

2:1-3:22

2. What stood out to you as you read, either because it was clear or because it was confusing?

CLEAR	CONFUSING

NOW LOOK AT REVELATION 1:4-8.

3. We will be paying attention to the way that John uses numbers in his writing. What significant number occurs in 1:4? _____ Mark it in your copy of the text by drawing an orange box around the word.

On page 210 of your workbook is a breakdown of the symbolic meaning of numbers in the Bible. What does this number symbolize?

Now take a minute to skim back through this week's section of the text, marking every occurrence of the number seven with an orange box around the word. You can also number each letter to the seven churches from 1-7 in orange.

4. John begins with a typical two-word greeting in 1:4. What two words are they? Why do you think he uses both, versus just one or the other?

Is the greeting from John or from someone else? List every person mentioned in 1:4-5a, along with the description associated with them.

5. Of the people you noted above, which one is celebrated in 1:5b-7?

What has this person accomplished in the past? (1:5b-6)

What is due to this person in the present? (1:6b)

What will this person do in the future? (1:7)
